

It appears to me that the title of the March 29 article is misleading (AOPA backs win-win.. etc.) What did we win? We lost OKB VOR alfa approach, we lost the holding function to OCN, We lost V-23 and V-208 and the VFR corridor along the coast. V-25 is ten miles off the coast and will not be used without increased risk and increased exposure. What do you mean "mitigation efforts"? I understand the military position and that we have to sacrifice sometimes, but I don't understand the "win-win" comment.

Doug Dwyer